WEATHER UPDATE: SNOW ACCUMULATION LIGHT; ROADS OPEN MOTORISTS ADVISED TO USE CAUTION

As of 5 a.m., Thursday, the Delaware Department of Transportation reports that all roads are open; most are wet, some back roads have a slight snow cover. Motorists are advised to use caution, especially on back roads that are likely to have some snow or slush on the surface. Motorists are asked to be aware of working snow equipment and to observe safe speeds on wet roads during the morning rush hours.

DelDOT crews continue to monitor road conditions and will apply sand and salt as necessary.

The National Weather Service reports that predictions of snow accumulations throughout the state have been downgraded for Thursday afternoon into Friday morning. At this time, no snow is reported to be falling in the state.
